UMBRELLAS

An outdoor umbrella failing in a gust of wind is more than an inconvenience. It becomes a safety issue the moment it lifts, tips or collapses in a space occupied by people. Most umbrellas carry no wind rating at all, and homeowners and venue operators find out the hard way exactly what their shade structure can and cannot handle when conditions deteriorate.

Wind rated cantilever umbrellas remove that uncertainty. A tested and rated umbrella tells you precisely what wind speed it can withstand and under what installation conditions, giving buyers a genuine basis for comparing products rather than relying on marketing language and manufacturer claims.

Wind Testing Explained Across the Instant Shade Range

Instant Shade Umbrellas provides wind rated cantilever umbrellas tested to withstand winds up to 65km/h depending on size and model. Our Aurora cantilever umbrella achieves a 50km/h wind rating when installed correctly, making it suited to residential patios, decks and pool areas across Australia. Wind ratings are determined through genuine testing rather than estimated figures, and installation method directly affects performance in-ground installations consistently outperform moveable base setups in wind conditions.
