Train traveling can be more comfortable when you are updated with the live train running status. It helps to make informed decisions according to the latest information, such as delay time, change in platform, and many more.

Each traveler should track the running status to find the real-time updates and plan accordingly. It can save time from waiting longer at railway stations, reduce travel stress, and improve the overall travel experience.

This article will explore the reasons behind checking the train's live running status to find the updated train timing for a comfortable journey. It also includes information about the steps to check the running status and tips that can help passengers to improve their travel experience.

What Is Live Train Running Status in Indian Railways?

Train live running status helps passengers to check the live location of your train, which helps in making the journey more comfortable. Live train running status refers to a real-time system to find the live location and expected delay time, and when it reaches the upcoming railway station.

Passengers can use this feature to find where is my train and plan to reach the boarding station accordingly. It helps to make train journeys more informed and reduce travel stress to make the journey smooth.

Why Should Travelers Use Train Running Status?

Travelers should consider the following reasons to track train running status during the journey.

- Reduce Waiting Period: Tracking the train's live running status can help to find the delay time. It helps travellers to plan in such a way to reach the station before the train arrives. It helps to reduce the long waiting time at railway stations.
- Stay Updated with Delays: You can use RailRestro to check the live running status and find the delay time in comparison to the actual train timing. Travelers can find such information to shape their journey to reduce travel stress.
- Schedule Pick up and Drop off: Train travelers can use the live running status to make efficient planning for the on-time pick-up and drop-off to improve their travel experience. You can check your PNR status to find the scheduled time, but the actual running status can vary.
- Manage Food Order: Smart travelers can use the RailRestro train app to check the running status to plan their train dining. It allows you to order your meal to get train food delivery at the next station. It helps to enjoy train food from more than 2500 restaurants at 500+ stations.

How to Check Train Running Status via RailRestro?

Travelers can use the following points to find the live location of their train.

- Download the RailRestro mobile app or reach out to the official website.
- Find and click on the “Running Status” feature available on the homepage.
- Enter the train number and hit the “Check Status” tab.
- You can find the information such as live location, upcoming railway stations, expected delay time, and platform number.

Live Running Status Tips for Travelers

The following tips can help passengers make train journeys more interesting.

- Check Before Boarding: You must avoid depending on the train timing because real-time running status can be different from it and checking the train's live running status can only help to stay updated. You should check 30-60 minutes before leaving home for boarding.
- Use the RailRestro App for Quick Access: You can use the RailRestro train app to get the real-time live location really quickly. It helps to provide correct information at the right time. You just need to keep your train number ready to check the live running status.
- Check Multiple Times: You should check the live status frequently to stay updated in real-time. It helps to track the changes with time to avoid any last-minute surprise. It can reduce travel stress and offer a successful journey.
- Plan with Updates: If the train is late, then you should leave your home late enough to avoid long waiting, but ensure reaching earlier enough to avoid missing the train.
- Combine with PNR Status: You can also combine the train running status with PNR status to find the exact location and find your journey details, such as seat and coach number, to board stress-free.

Plan Food Order: You can also use the train running status to find the upcoming railway station and its time. It helps to plan your meals at next station from top restaurants using the RailRestro app.
